

NEW WORLD GENERATION INC.

May 29, 2014

Dear Shareholder,

It continues to be a busy spring. New World Generation, in cooperation with a US based company has continued testing an advanced system for energy storage. This week the third prototype will be tested. Upon success, we will move to the next technical milestone, a third party validation.

As previously stated, NWG has an opportunity to demonstrate the unit, however a third party validation is required, prior to installation. It is still anticipated that the beta project will be on target for completion late summer.

While the NWG website is now live, much detail has been left off regarding the storage technology, due to the confidential nature of the project.

The shareholder login section will be completed in June and password will be sent with the next mail out.

With regards,

A handwritten signature in blue ink, appearing to read 'Peter Routliff'.

Peter Routliff
NWG President and Chair