Dear Shareholder:

The Board of NWG met prior to the holidays and authorized several exciting initiatives. This shareholder update will focus on the following related growth areas: Valuation, Technical, Sales, Capital Investment, Structure and Governance.

Blue Box Technology (BBT) the wholly owned subsidiary of New World Generation (NWG) has received a potential 3rd party valuation should we achieve 10 sales of our waste heat to power system. We have formed a solid relationship with MNP and have their support of our initiatives related to share value, structure and governance. Our plan is to continue to move forward based on their recommendations.

BBT has negotiated an exclusive agreement with Vericor Power systems to package their engines with our patented technology to create the BBT waste heat to power system. Currently, we are hosting a meeting with third party engineering and construction teams to review approved technical blueprints and related details in order to develop installation and operational procedures for the BBT system.

Concurrently, we are working through finalizing the initial sales agreements with the first target customers. Once we have the utility impact assessment, which should take approximately 2 weeks, we will move the project forward with the information and recommendations that come from the engineering and construction teams meeting.

BBT has formed a technical, industry-specific business development team. This is a major step as it allows us to connect with several large allies on the supply and sales side in the waste heat to power industry.

NWG has authorized the hiring of a CEO. The targeted CEO is already working with NWG on one of the principal functions of the role which is procuring additional investment capital. Another key hire is a Project Manager. We are in the final stages of securing an industry leader in this field with the desired technical background essential to our first install.

We are sure that you are as excited as we are and that you recognize, in these advancements, the NWG Board's continued commitment to increasing shareholder value.

With best regards,

The NWG Board of Directors
